Scene: Marie is attending the Kadayawan Festival for the first time.

Kaye : Hi, Marie! It's your first time in Davao City, right?

Marie : Yes, Kaye. It's my first time and luckily it's the right time since there's Kadayawan Festival going on. That's called perfect timing.

Kaye : It sure is, and you're most welcome to join us. I think floral float parade is about to start quite soon.

Marie : Is that the parade of flowers? I've never seen anything like it. I'll have to take a lot of photos for people back home.

Kaye : You are right, it is the parade of flowers! Just get ready on time since there will be a lot of people taking photos. And after the flower parade, you'll be able to see the different ethnic tribes that live here in Davao City.

Marie : That's sounds like an interesting thing to witness! And how about durian, Kaye?

Kaye : You can buy it basically anywhere. You don't need to worry about that.

Marie : Please remind me to buy one after the parade, I don't know if I'll remember next to all this excitement. And what can we do during nighttime?

Kaye : There's some street dancing going on along the streets of San Pedro, which is one of the most famous streets here in Davao City, and it's near the city hall.

Marie : Sounds like I have my night planned. Now let's move closer, I want to be able to take a lot of photos. There is so much more cultural diversity here than in my country. I can't wait to discover more!

Kaye : Then let's not waste time. Let's go, follow me.
