*Caren has just come to London as a foreign exchange student.
She is walking down the streets of the city with her host-mother.*

Caren : Oh my, I forgot my cell phone at the house. Can you please tell me what time it is, Mrs. Hill?

Mrs. Hill : I'm really sorry child, I don't carry my cellphone with me. But we have good old Ben here in London to tell us the exact time.

Caren : (a bit baffled) Ben? Oh, you mean Big Ben, the clock?

Mrs. Hill : No, no, no! Big Ben is not the name of the clock, it is the name of the bell. But don't worry, it is a common misconception.

Caren : Why is the bell called Big Ben, Mrs. Hill?

Mrs. Hill : That information is not known for sure, but the most likely explanation is that it got the name after Sir Benjamin Hall, the man who was overseeing its installation and construction of the new Palace of Westminster.

Caren : The new Palace of Westminster? I thought the Palace was there for centuries. Oh my, I came to United Kingdom not knowing anything.

Mrs. Hill : (smiling) Don't worry, Caren, you'll learn, now that you are in the heart of it. Anyway, the Palace burned down in a huge fire in 1834. The story was that there were so many people watching, that the firefighters couldn't get through easily. When they got there eventually, there was nothing much left to save.

Caren : What happened with the bell?

Mrs. Hill : Big Ben was created later. When the Palace was being refurbished, they asked the architect to include the Clock Tower as well. It was a very arduous task since there were four clocks that needed to work at the same time, so the mechanism was very complicated. And there were problems with the bell as well.

Caren : Oh, oh, I know that the bell cracked two times and that the current Big Ben is cracked, right?

Mrs. Hill : That is correct, Caren. But you know, that crack makes Ben unique. Come on, let's grab a bite to eat, and I can tell you more about the rich history of London.
